PAREX, a major player in the field of building chemistry, is actively engaged in the fight against climate change. In addition to responding to environmental, social and societal challenges, he also supports the Green Solutions Awards and, more specifically, the Energy and Climate category.

Louis Engel, Safety and Sustainable Development Director, explains the reasons for PAREX's involvement in the competition and describes the Group's actions in favor of sustainable construction, particularly with its "Build Responsible" approach. Check out his interview!
